

The UCSC Classical Studies Program and the President's Chair in Ancient Studies present the annual Carl Deppe Lecture

Professor Simon Goldhill
First Words, Dying Moments:
Starting and Ending in Sophocles and Euripides

Friday April 12 at 4 p.m.
Cowell Provost House
Reception to follow

Simon Goldhill is Professor of Greek at Cambridge where he also runs the university's interdisciplinary research center. He has lectured all over the world and appeared on TV and radio and in the theatre in America, Australia, Canada as well as regularly in Britain and Europe. He is a leading expert on Greek tragedy and Greek culture.

For more information, please contact jklynn@ucsc.edu

How does tragedy start and stop — and what does it tell us about the ends of man?